Frigo Design offers Custom-Built Designer Metal Products to Complement Outdoor Cooking Areas

Brewerton, NY – June 2006 – What used to be known as the patio, the deck or simply just the backyard has now been dubbed the "Outdoor Living Area." As families take more advantage of the ambience of being outside, the old traditional charcoal grill or gas grill has evolved to a whole new experience, with elaborate stainless steel barbecue/grilling stations..

Convenience, functionality and attractiveness have become essentials in designing the ideal outdoor cooking environment, and Frigo Design – a nationally recognized designer and fabricator of custom metals -- has all the perfect options for backyard entertaining. Stainless Steel and Copper countertops, splashes, tiles, cabinets and cabinet doors and drawer fronts that ideally complement and enhance the outdoor barbeque experience.

"Homeowners are complementing their state-of-the-art barbeque systems with special cabinetry, countertops, sinks and even undermounted mini refrigerators," said Alan Isaacs, Frigo Design's Vice President of Marketing and Sales. "There is an emerging trend of outdoor cooking areas rivaling the indoor kitchen. We have a collection of Stainless Steel and Copper products that are wonderfully suited for outdoor cooking – both in terms of durability and appearance."

According to home decorators, the number one choice of material for outdoor cooking and entertainment areas is Stainless Steel. "Stainless Steel has long been the quintessential material for outside barbeques because of its long-lasting, non-corrosive, weather-resistant, easy-to-maintain properties," added Isaacs. "It is beautiful, durable, functional and extremely aseptic appealing, which makes it highly desirable in outdoor entertaining. Imagine a sleek Stainless Steel grilling unit complemented by a preparation area featuring: Stainless Steel countertop, custom cabinetry, cabinet doors and much more. The result: a unique combination of practicality and elegance."

Frigo Design's innovative collection of custom designed outdoor decorating products – countertops, wall and floor tiles, wall splashes, cabinet doors and much more – using luminous, sophisticated Stainless Steel as well as warm, classic Copper and a broad selection of Metallic Finishes such as Pewter, Rubbed Bronze, Indigo Blue and Granite, among others. All of Frigo Design's specialty metals are hand-crafted and custom designed to order.

"Today's high-end, discriminating consumers, who are on the cutting edge of design, want custom products that reflect their own personal style," added Isaacs.
